The Program

The English major/minor program prepares students to become writers, readers, and communicators with advanced critical and analytical skills. The core requirements familiarize students with the literary canon while also exposing them to demographically and geographically diverse literature. Students have the opportunity to respond to literary works with their own ideas through the course writing assignments, which are preparation for a final capstone paper near the end of their academic career. The major and minor can be tailored to students' literary and occupational interests.

Advantages

Mayville State's faculty have specialized backgrounds in the field of English and can provide students with advanced understanding of their coursework. Small on-campus and online class sizes allow students to converse with their peers and instructor, providing the best possible atmosphere for understanding literature and improving one's writing. Students have opportunities to voice their thoughts and opinions in class, providing them with practice in communication and analytical skills that are transferable to a number of careers. Students have access to a writing center that provides tutoring support for their coursework along with a potential job opportunity as a writing center consultant.

"The MaSU English program has widened my view on literature and writing through many fun and diverse classes. The professors in this program have opened the door for me in the writing world by giving me opportunities to submit my work and present at conferences."
